New water basin in Opole region

383 Liger is planning to create "man-made" lake reservoir in the Opole region

Cracow, 27th February 2014 - 383 Liger is going to create a water reservoir on the river Scinawa Niemodlinska in the Opole region. In February 2014, a representative of the company met with municipalities of Prudnik and Korfantów to raise the question of building a water reservoir with an area of 88 hectares. It will have retention and recreational functions.

"Municipalities of Prudnik and Korfantów expressed their interest in investment. Moreover, the land reclamation specialists are also convinced of its necessity. Currently, we are waiting for authorization of the geological studies that are necessary to kick off the project" – says Miro Samonek, one of the company representatives in Poland.

Firstly, 383 Liger will commission geological surveys to estimate the cost of the investment. The next stage of the work will be mining and then excavation will be flooded with the waters of the river Ścinawa Niemodlinska. In the final phase of the project surrounding areas will be adapted for recreational purposes.

The main goal of the project is to increase the safety of local residents, whose lands are regularly flooded by the river Scinawa Niemodlinska. In addition, it will become a tourist hotspot in the region. Similar investments are put in place all over the world. As an example Portugal is going to build eight multi-purpose reservoirs by 2020.
